SINN FEIN MOVEMENT WARNING IN IRELAND

Provisional Government System When Martial Law is Abolished.

London, July 11, 8:15 p. m.—In the course of a discussion in the house of lords today on the report of Lord Hardinge, head of the commission which investigated the Irish rebellion, and in which several members urged that Augustine Birrell, former secretary of Ireland, ought to have been censured as the one responsible for the Sinn Fein outbreak, Lord Lansdowne outlined a system for the provisional government of Ireland when martial law is abolished there and until a new government can be established. An Irish secretary, with a capable military advisor, would be appointed. There would be also a new chief of the royal Irish constabulary, who would be a well known soldier. Nobody would be allowed to carry arms without a permit and there would be a system of amnesty. A garrison would be maintained in Ireland strong enough to preserve order and special safeguards would be created for the loyalists in the south and west.

Lord Lansdowne said he understood the Sinn Fein movement was marinating and that he had anticipated the passage of a bill embodying the Irish settlement would occupy a considerable time.

Lord Lansdowne thought that with 40,000 troops in Ireland under command of General Maxwell, in whom the government had unabated confidence, there was no fear of the situation getting out of hand.

The official gazette tonight announced that Lord Castletown and Sir David Harrell, former under-secretary for Ireland, with Justice Cherry, Wylie and Pym of the supreme court of Ireland, had been appointed "lord justices" for the government of Ireland, delivered an address on "Integrity" to the World's Salesmanship Congress held today. Jones, while at London, was known as a "model prisoner."

"Perhaps you may say it's too good ever to come true. Yet bosses are learning the business value of integrity and are adopting it."

"Choosing Men" was the subject of an address by Brown Landone of Paris. Mr. Landone was director-general of the International Social and Civil Exposition, Rochester and Cincinnati are campaigning for the next congress.
